A BLACKBERRY STORY .- Edmund Morris, of Burlington, N. J., writes to Tilton's Journal of Horticulture :

"The blackberry, having latterly taken its place among horticultural staples, is attracting the attention of hundreds of acute and persevering seekers after fresh novelties. Its commercial value has been satisfactorily determined. It fully equals the raspberry in productiveness, and, as a general rule, far out-strips the strawberry. In this section, where the two great city markets are within a few hours of us, the profit from a well-managed acre will pay the fee of the land annually.

A gentleman within two miles of me, by way of interesting his son (a young lad) in agriculrural pursuits, gave him the free use of an acre to cultivate as he pleased. The shrewd boy located a halt-acre on one side of his father's barn-yard, and the other on the opposite s de. He could thus trundle out a dozen barrow loads of manure upon his ground when ever disposed. He planted his acre in Lawton black berries; eultivated them himself; and last year his gross sales of fruit amounted to MILLINERY! six hundred dollars. The year preceding, his clear profit from the same acre was four hunhund and fifty dollars. I have walked through this magnificent creation of juvenile care and shrewdness, and must confess that no engineering of my own in the same line has been able to equal it.

"The contents of the convenient barn-yard told powerfully on the canes, but more powerfully on the quantity and quality of the fruit.

The fee of the land, though in the best location was much less valuable than the annual BLACK CROOKS, MARGUERITAS, &c., crop. Within gunshot of this field are ten acres of the same berry, which last year yielded a net profit of four thousand two hundred SUNSHADES and INFANTS' HATS; also ed a net profit of four thousand two hundred dollars-more than the land would sell for.

"The father of the lad referred to was engaged in mercantile business in Philadelphia, but he never realized such profits as he thus tice. saw his enterprising son to be annually securing. The example set before him by the lad inflamed his ambition to drop some one or two branches of agriculture, and take to raising berries also. He began his planting several years ago-for his son has long been harvesting very paying crops-and has been planting annually from the increase of his own fields, until he now has thirty acres of Lawtons .--Last winter he cut down an apple orchard of large bearing trees to make room for more briers. The profits from the latter far outstripped the best orchard in the country.

"It is thus manifest that the commercial value of the blackberry has been satisfactorily ascertained, in Burlington, at least, and doubtless in a thousand other localities.

How to BECOME A MILLIONAIRE -John McDonough, the millionaire of New Orleans, had engraved upon his tomb a series of Maxims prescribed as the rule for his guidance through life, and to which his success in business is mainly attributed. They contain so much wisdom that we copy them :

RULES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF MY LIFE, 1804.—Remember that labor is one of the conditions of our existence. Time is gold; throw not one minute away, but place each one to account. Do unto all men as you would be done by. Never put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day. Never bid another do what you can do yourself. Never covet what is not your own. Never think any matter so trifling as not to deserve notice. Never give out that which does not first come in. Never spend 22, 1853, have been lost, and that I shall apply own. Never think any matter so trifling as but to produce. Let the greatest order regulate the transactions of your lite. Study in your course of life, to do the greatest amount

Deprive yourself of nothing necessary to your comfort, but live in an honorable simplicity. Labor, then, to the last moment of your existence. Pursue strictly the above rules, and the Divine blessing and riches of every kind will flow upon you to your heart's content; but first of all, remember that the chief and great duty of your life should be to tend, by all means in your power, to the honor and glory of our Divine Creator.

The conclusion to which I have arrived is, that without temperance there is no health; without virtue no order; without religion no happiness: and that the aim of our being is to live wisely, soberly and righteously.

JOHN McDonough New Orleans, March 2, 1864.

DUTCH CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS. - We have heretofore published the cure for drunkenness in use in Holland, but as the evil is greatly prevalent here, it can do no harm, and may accomplish good, to give it to our readers again. The cure is simple, easily practised, and we recommend it to the friends of those whose unfortunate appetite for strong drink is oausing them to undermine their health, deplete their pockets, disgrace themselves and tamilies, and finally end in a drunkardis grave.

The remedy is as follows: "The patient is shut up in a room and debarred all communication, except with his physician. As often as he pleases, spirits, brandy, whisky, gin, etc. - are given him, but mixed with two-thirds water, all other drinks, such as beer, coffee, wine, etc., are mixed with onethird brandy. The various viands that are given him-bread, meat, etc. - are prepared with brandy; consequently the patient is in a state of continual intoxication. This lasts about five days; at the end of that time he asks with entreaty for some nourishment, without his request being complied with, and not until his organs naturally abhor alchohol. The cure is complete, and from that day forth the very smell of spirits produces the effect of an eme-
